Course Code:	PSY410
Course Name:	ETHICS IN PSYCHOLOGY
Credit / ECTS:	3 Credit/ 5 ECTS
Catalogue Description:	The definition of ethics, ethics in psychological research and psychological practices, explaining the ethical decision-making process, discussing sample situations related to the solution of ethical problems constitute the content of the course.
Course Objectives:	The aim of this course is to teach the ethical rules of the profession of psychology to senior students who are graduate candidates and to examine the problems in professional ethics, and also to examine the ethical principles of the APA and Turkish Psychologists Association Ethical Regulations and to identify ethical violations.
Learning Outcome (s):	1- Knows and appreciate APA Ethic Codes and Turkish Psychological Association Ethical Regulations. 2- Defines situations that need to be decided in line with ethical codes and questions possible problems with a scientific problem-solving approach. 3- Describes the theoretical situation that creates an ethical dilemma, defines, criticizes and solves the problem.
Weekly Topics	1- Introduction to Ethics in Psychology 2- Ethical Theories and Principles 3- Ethical Guidelines in Psychological Research 4- Ethical Issues in Clinical Psychology 5- Ethics in Psychological Assessment & Testing 6- Ethics in Applied Psychology (Forensic, Industrial-Organizational, Health, etc.) 7- Ethical Decision-Making Models 8- Cultural and Global Perspectives on Ethics in Psychology 9- Ethical Considerations in Digital & AI Psychology 10- Ethics in Teaching, Supervision, and Training 11- Emerging Ethical Issues in Psychology 12- Case Studies, Review, and Course Conclusion